This study was designed to assess the efficacy of a new cardiotocographic (CTG) procedure to monitor fetal wellbeing during labor. A sample of 140 patients were studied. A total of 588 CTG tracings were reviewed in the study. These tracings were graded for fetal heart rate, baseline variability and fetal movement and each of these were correlated with the flash visual evoked potentials (VEP) that was recorded during the third stage of labor. The mean ages of the patients in the study were 28.9 +/- 4.2 years and their parity of 2.3 +/- 1.0. The average number of VEPs obtained during the third stage of labor was 8.4 +/- 5.3. There was a significant difference between the fetal heart rate, baseline variability and fetal movement grade and the VEP amplitude (p "The Batmobile" is headed back to Gotham City for the first time in nearly two decades thanks to the LEGO Batman Movie, and fans can get a first look at the new Batmobile in the latest LEGO set.
