Nuclear androgen receptors were determined in endometrium from infertile patients with different aetiologies of female infertility, including Müllerian duct anomalies (MDA) (obliteration of the Müllerian ducts) and hyperplasia of endometrial glands. It was shown that in patients with Müllerian duct anomalies, the number of endometrial nuclear androgen receptors was decreased when compared with women in the same age group with normal endometrium.Mental health services in Ibadan, Nigeria. In Nigeria, health services for mental illness are limited. The aims of this paper were to identify types of mental health services available in Ibadan, to describe the scope of services, and to describe the sources of funding. Structured questionnaires were used to gather data on the availability of mental health services in three public hospitals and the non-governmental organisation Institute of Human Development, Ibadan. The main problems in mental health service provision were shortages of trained staff, inadequate resources and patient reception problems. This study has shown that 3e33713323
