Early life Westerholt was born in Tilburg, North Brabant. She has three younger siblings and her parents are both teachers. Her mother is from Nigeria, and her father is from the Netherlands. Westerholt has an economics degree and she is currently working as a receptionist. Pageantry Westerholt was first runner-up at the 2013 National Beauty Contest, finishing second and earning the right to represent the Netherlands at the 2013 Miss Universe. She was crowned Miss Universe in Panama City on 4 December 2013. At the national contest, she was interviewed by the reigning Miss Universe 2012, Stefania Fernandez. The pageant Westerholt's national costume was Timbo, a traditional Friesian costume that consisted of a 19th-century servant's costume with modern accessories, for which she was awarded the Miss University title. She was also awarded the title Miss Talent. She was seen as a frontrunner in the race after winning Miss Netherlands 2013. According to the Dutch newspaper, De Telegraaf, Westerholt's strong performances during her beauty pageant earned her a "brighter future". Because of Westerholt's age, her crowning was delayed until December after the winning of the title became the responsibility of the National Beauty Contest. Before competing in Miss Universe, Westerholt represented the Netherlands at the 2013 Miss Universe Europe, where she placed second runner-up. Westerholt's finishing order in the semifinals was 21st, and therefore she was placed in the top ten, the highest placement
