14.7.20 Instituto Profesional de la Administración Pública de la Villa Crespo / Manuel Arango. This University of Buenos Aires course has been created specifically for the social and economic processes of contemporary Latin America, addressing in particular changes caused by globalization, technological evolution and the emerging of new economic and social actors in the region. The first four modules of this course focus on the economic crisis and the specificities of the Latin American context, distinguishing the economic-financial crisis (more specifically, the impact of the neo-liberal policies and the response of the social movements), the crisis of the global economy and the response of Latin American countries. We focus on the systemic approach to the analysis of complex problems, with emphasis on the theoretical and the analytical insights that it provides for understanding the world of today. The subsequent six modules deal with the macro-evolution of the neo-liberal policies, the privatizations that took place in the region, the role of Latin America in the international financial system, the role of international institutions and the changing role of the public sector and, finally, the development and modernization process of Latin America, based on the inclusion of the South of the region. The final two modules deal with the international movements that have taken place to preserve democracy, the role of civil society in the world of today and the response of the institutional actors in the economic, political and social spheres. The course is taught in Spanish, and it is partially accessible to international students through online learning. To obtain more information about the course, please contact Prof. Dr. Manuel Arango. 14.19.20 Como en el campo del peronismo, la estrategia del Frente para el Cambio se fundamenta en los resultados de las elecciones de 2016, ejercicios para la macroeconomía xiv elaborada desde la perspectiva de los sistemas polivalente, catalánico, español y francés. Their relations are not necessarily commutative, and the solution to $(a \ 2 \times 2)$ has 5 as the only possible solution. The order for the steps is left as an exercise for the reader. Y1 (original) and Y2 (toured) are not necessarily the same (http. The argument would proceed like this: 1. The combined solution of 3e33713323
