Topics: Boulder catches fire BOULDER, Colo.
(AP) -- An eight-alarm fire leveled the earthen foundation of a two-story apartment complex in Boulder and nearby homes Sunday, forcing its evacuation, but no serious injuries were reported.
The fire broke out just before 6 a.m. in the three-unit complex at 3225 Warm Springs Way, near the intersection of Wadsworth Boulevard and Broadway, Boulder fire spokesman Rob Davis said. Residents were evacuated, and low-lying residents were warned to get to higher ground, fire officials said. "All units were evacuated, the building was deemed uninhabitable and will be demolished," Boulder police spokesman Ryan Huff said. City officials said they were working with neighboring homeowners to make sure everyone evacuated safely. "People were warned of the fire, and we do have reports of some people getting up there," Davis said. "That appears to be a good outcome," he added. Police said no injuries were reported, though Huff said that firefighter were sustaining smoke inhalation.
