6. Save your image. You can save your image at any time by pressing Ctrl+S (Windows) or Command+S (Mac). This will export your image to a file that can be reopened at a later date. 7. Enhance the photo with a toning technique and gradients. In this example, you can use the Curve dialog box to modify the middle-toned image. The dialog box has many options, including the option to add a black-and-white layer mask to the image. Here are your options: * Click Curves at the bottom of the Layers panel and then click the Curve tab in the menu bar. * Choose Curves from the Adjustments panel's sidebar menu. The Curve dialog box opens, as shown in Figure 9-10. 8. Under the Curves tab, adjust the B / L values so that the image is more middle-toned in the midtones of the tonal range. Click the black arrow to the right of the B value until it is filled in. Your L value, which appears above the arrow, should be set to -250. Click and drag the B value to the right until it's set to 0, and repeat this process to increase the brightness. Click and drag the L value left until it's set to -350. 9. Click the Saturation tab and adjust the S / V values. 10. Click OK. FIGURE 9-10: Use Curves to enhance the image. To create a layer mask, click the Add Layer Mask icon (the plus sign) next to the layer. Then click the Brush tool to paint a selection on the new layer to apply the black-and-white layer mask to it. 11. Blur the image in the Effects panel. A quick blur is usually all that's needed to add a touch of drama to an image. 12. Combine the two images by merging them using the Layer Merge dialog box. Select Layer 1 in the Layers panel and press Ctrl+E (Windows) or Command+E (Mac) to open the Layer Merge dialog box. Click the button with the Merge to Layers icon to merge the two layers

Church Bells The Church Bells () is a public artwork in the Botanical Garden of the Czech Republic, Prague. This outdoor sculpture, installed in 1996, is by the Czech artist and designer Vlastislav Brauner. The monument commemorates the growth of the city and its citizens. The sculptures were erected to commemorate the 850th anniversary of the city's conversion to Christianity by Pope Gregory I. Description The Church Bells were installed at the base of the former steeple of the former Prague Cathedral, and originally had a more significant role, as the original bells of the cathedral were from the beginning of the 12th century, the earliest constructional material of which was stone, other materials were wood. According to the original design by Brauner, the bells were to be made of copper. Due to the dissolution of the Czech Kingdom, the bells were moved to the St. Vitus Cathedral, where they were first housed in a special sanctuary. I'm getting married next month and my officiant asked me to help write a wedding ceremony. I'm currently reading one-two books on the whole "how to marry the perfect couple" concept and while I'm going through it all I have a few questions: How do you prepare your self to be a licensed officiant and what kind of credentials do you need to get the job done? How do you handle your own emotions and inner thoughts when facing a momentous occasion such as my wedding? How much homework should I be doing on my wedding? What kind of background should I be looking at in regards to the rituals of marriage? Should I look into the Jewish wedding or are there other religions that are similar to marriage that I should learn about? What topics should I focus on in order to make it the best day of my life? I'd love to hear answers to these questions, and any other wedding-related questions you may have. Thanks for all the responses! I'll take these to my fiancé and I, and take it from there :) I was ordained by my dad's rabbi. He's family and I guess I wanted to follow in his footsteps! It meant a lot to my dad and I was granted a license from the local parish where he served. My father in law and his parents officiated at our wedding. We got the kids to sing, and we made the songs about our own love for each other, along with silly words like "The bride and groom have been best buddies since they were small little boys, they're now grown up and adults and this is what they see in one another and in her daughter as well". My husband and I officiated at our wedding. We also asked our three kids to sing to us during the ceremony. We wrote our own vows. We were both open to incorporating elements of two major religions into our ceremony: we mentioned our children's faith traditions as well as our own. @Sarah, do you have any photos of your wedding, or is the audio from it the only documentation of your wedding? I'm trying to do something like this, though we would be doing a ceremony in a Muslim culture. We're having our wedding in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Any advice? I had my
