The Ryua Kingdom A hundred thousand years ago, the land of Ryua was once a beautiful world. The trees were huge and old, and the land was covered with lush grass. There was a large lake that filled the center of the region. The people were happy and prosperous, and there were no wars or conflicts. There was peace and happiness in the country that was known as the Kingdom of Ryua. Then suddenly, the Kingdom of Ryua fell. During that time, a low-level king named Ryua attacked another castle and was suddenly defeated. As the country was overwhelmed by the war, King Ryua had been defeated. The kingdom fell, and only the King's children, Ryua and Ryu, escaped from the castle. The country had fallen, and King Ryua and his children ran to the underground laboratory of Ryua. The laboratory was the place where scientists had researched to create powerful monsters and devices. The king was hoping that they would have a technology for the war. While King Ryua and his children were in the laboratory, a group of monsters attacked from the outside of the laboratory. The monsters, with traces of magic, were forbidden from existence by the magicians, and there were rumors that they had been discarded. However, they suddenly appeared. A ferocious attack was unleashed on the laboratory, and monsters appeared everywhere, including in the underground laboratory. The monsters were destroyed by gunfire. If the monsters had defeated them, they would have been killed

Map screen

In the previous FINAL FANTASY® XIV: A Realm Reborn public beta test, the map screen was displayed in the traditional map format, making it difficult to identify your current location or orientation.

In the new FINAL FANTASY® XIV: A Realm Reborn beta test, the map screen uses a new interface that is different from the previous beta test. The outer white border has been eliminated, providing the information on the current location more clearly and dynamically.

In addition, the map screen can be scrolled on the right side, and the current map, a marker, and landmark information is displayed.

To the right of the map, a drag-and-drop-friendly layout panel has also been added. This panel lets you arrange the various elements of the layout in a flexible manner.

Orientation and location on the map screen

Orientation and location has been adjusted in order to improve usability.

Orientation is displayed to the left or right side of the map.

When you place an object with the drag-and-drop-friendly layout panel onto the orientation of your choice, that object is automatically placed in the correct location.

Location is displayed on top of the map.

When the character's current location is within a city or town, local data and markers are displayed in order to improve player's ability to quickly and intuitively find where they need to go.

Character information on the map screen

When the character's current location is outside of a city or town, the character name and current information is displayed in order to allow you to know whether or not you're close to the character.

Equipment information on the map screen

The character's equipment is now displayed automatically in the right panel of the map screen when you equip it.

warriors in history strove to protect the lands and beasts.

Thats not too bad, the art is a bit odd really. I think part of the problem though is the backgrounds that are the same colour throughout the whole canvas are a bit mismatched, so the ground is just slightly mismatched to the sky. 1/2 the time I nearly thought there was an ad for an iphone game.
