Elden Ring [Mac/Win]

Posted on Apr 1, 2015 01:03 PM Posted on Dec 1, 2014 07:10 AM Rated 5.0/5 Stars I love this game!! LOL... it is so cute the first time I played this was back when it was in alpha state, and now I love it. I got to 30 level 4 at this version and I'm at level 50 now, there were some issues with the lag at first but the game was fixed a year ago and so now the lag is not there anymore. I started the game right away as I love it. A friend of mine introduced me to it. I love the world of Elden and the story there's so much to do and it's so fun to play ^^ The game's graphics are really amazing, nice and attractive. Their animations are nice too. All the animations I see are quality too. I like how there's a lot of items to find in the world, and what's even more, there's lots of dungeons to explore. I found monsters and items in these dungeons too. I even found an area with a new boss! The gameplay is really nice. Your character when you start your game will look like a normal person in a town. But once you beat the boss at the end of the first dungeon and gained some power, you will become an animated character and you will start your journey to the Elden. You can travel by airship, horse, and foot. In horse, you can only travel in one direction, there's no wheel like in real life but it makes sense because of the game's setting. At every level you need to explore the world and find and break locks to get some interesting items (levels are unlocked when you're level 10), you also need to explore and find the boss. I'm at level 50 right now and there are so many dungeons to explore and I still have so many to explore. The hunger bar is kinda similar like a day and night system. Once the hunger bar runs out, you'll sleep in a town and if you have done good in the dungeons, you'll gain some experience points. You can use items and buy items too. If you have enough money you can buy some items like weapons, armor, health potions, and many more. My favorite parts of this game are there's a lot bff6bb2d33

Q: Stabilize the temperature in a room during an earthquake
On May 13, 2012, there was a magnitude 6.6 (on the Richter scale) earthquake near Salina Cruz, Mexico. The people in the affected buildings were evacuated. Is there any way to stabilize the temperature of a room, where there is no AC? If it is fine to use a fan or other heating source, what do I need?
A: There is a mechanical solution. The fastest way to cool a large room is to use the fan option in your thermostat or directly on the fan (not all fans do this). Just set it on the manual mode and once you have started to cool the room, add a bit more energy (up to 10% of the setting you use) to the fan. How much you need depends on the temperature, ventilation and room size. The manual of the furnace will say how much energy a fan can take.
A: Here's a

if you don't have NSIS(Nullsoft Scriptable Install System) installed than just copy that NSIS.exe file to game directory, and then right click and run it. [If NSIS is not installed than use the following tutorial to do it]: How to install NSIS in Win/Mac If the proper location of the game's crack folder is not set in the game, or the game doesn't launch in the folder, than make a folder, and put it in the game's folder in the "My Documents" location, and put the game's crack folder there. You'll know you have set the proper path for the game's crack folder is the game's folder contains a folder called "cracks" (if the game isn't default installed). If you put a crack folder in the game's crack folder, the game will be able to find the crack. You can manually launch the game by simply going to "My Documents" and finding a folder called "coldfiregame" (if you put the game's crack folder in the game's folder). You'll know the game's proper crack folder is set to the "My Documents" folder if the "coldfiregame" folder contains a folder called "Crack" (if you put the game's crack folder in the game's folder) You'll know the game's proper crack folder is set correctly, if you look in the "My Documents" folder and find a file called "coldfiregame", and the file is a.exe. If you don't see the "coldfiregame" file, you have to right click on the "coldfiregame" folder and choose the option to "create Shortcuts". The game will launch for you if you have the "coldfiregame" shortcut, so that is good. If the game isn't launching, make sure you have all the NSIS files and NSIS version/patch in your game's game directory. If you see a "Linking...failed" error message, you probably haven't downloaded the full NSIS file. If you do have the full NSIS file, make sure the NSIS file is put in the game's game directory. You'll know the game is installed properly if you can go to "My Documents" and find a folder called "coldfiregame" (if you put the game's crack folder in the game's
