The core of the game and the engine will not change.Tag Archives: nofibrot I always expected that, if one could live to old age without going completely mad, then the added stress of doing too much or too little could kill one. I imagined how, as one's health declined, one might begin to find oneself at the mercy of 'if-then' rules that no longer fitted, rules or circumstances that had themselves begun to change. Maybe this was how senility came to be. I assumed that normality was normal, that it was a condition of sanity to carry on so that one could perhaps carry on. I assumed that the ability to cope with change was normal, so what I needed was the courage and strength to adapt to change. I believed that stupidity was normal too, so I could only overcome it if I was able to recognise it for what it was. In my early years I was absolutely certain of these things. I believed them, and I acted on them. But as the years passed, I began to see things differently. Now I realise that the issue is not whether one or the other of these conditions is normal, for normal is as much a political construct as a medical observation.

Cyberathlete with Medallist Ghostwriter Update: 1 Minute For Intervention: More as Media Frenzy Over Rahul Gandhi's Love Letter Masks Isthmus Of Gom Map Ammonios Rosado, Head of the Cyberathlete with Gold Medal in War Games, has been staring in the helmet screen, staring at the small, beep-beep-beeping-up smartphone. Once he knew he had won, he even wished the name of the poor fellow who would be the loser: a twenty-six year old avant garde comics artist, Rich Docent. On May 10, he emerged from the internet with this blog: It was many months ago. I worked on making my decision to compete in the Westercon Conventions and a boy was chosen from a list of 3,000 to compete for Second Place. I was not surprised that he was not as good. While I am glad that I was selected, I no longer wish to compete anymore, because although I wished for a medallist, I am now left with a loser. Update: 1 Minute For Intervention: More as Media Frenzy Over Rahul Gandhi's Love Letter Masks Isthmus of Gom MapQ: Hover on nested row in HighCharts I have a one-row chart and a nested data with 2 rows. I need to trigger a function when I hover on the nested row, but it's not working. My code: var chart = new Highcharts.Chart({ chart: { renderTo: 'container', type: 'column' }, title: { text: 'Sales Amount' }, subtitle: { text: 'Total revenues for this week' }, tooltip: { shared: true }, xAxis: {
