BELOW is a procedurally generated, top-down action adventure game. Explore the massive procedural world, interact with intelligent enemies, investigate mysteries and dead ends, discover lost items and craft "medkits" to be used in battle... or to save your life. Harsh realities of life Get the right stuff you need. BELOW is as much about the world as it is about the gameplay, and the world is a harsh place. Players will have to scavenge the world for resources to survive, and the scavenging is not always a pleasant experience. There are creatures and monstrosities stalking the world, trying to get the best and eat the freshest of things. Players will have to be careful in their hunting if they want to live through the night! Provenance of every loot is a matter of life and death, and possessions have a very short shelf-life. Monstrosities will eat the well-intentioned souls, and the wicked will simply destroy the loot. Different personalities and skills Scavenge, craft and create The world is full of life and things to do, but some things are best left alone. crafting is a way to express your creativity and have fun, and there are numerous things to be crafted in the world. Up to 4 crafting types can be mixed and matched to create tools, accessories, and all manner of interesting and useful things. Some things will require ingredients (such as those for smoking) and others will require components (such as those for brewing). Crafting is a great way to not only express your creativity, but for players to have a reason to explore the world and discover new things. As mentioned above, the world is very diverse, and is filled with hidden secrets and items. Key Features: - Procedurally Generated World: Experience the island as a unique place, and we are the first to acknowledge that players will not be experiencing the same island every time they play. The world is beautiful, full of life and deadly traps, and players will have to work hard to survive. There are endless possibilities to discover in BELOW. - Explore the Underworld: Constructed with care, the world is built to be dangerous and intractable. The world is not entirely a single location, but a collection of interconnected terrariums. The Isle is a living, breathing place, and players will have to discover the mysteries, dangers and creatures within as they trek through THE DEPTHS, the world that lies below the surface c9d1549cdd

What's new in Flow - Thinking In Meditation:

Steven Universe: Save the Light is a 2015 album by American musician and anime and pop music artist Keiichi Suzuki. It is his sixth studio album, following 2012's Steven Universe, and the third to be released on vinyl and other format. The cover art featured Steven Leonard Donald "Steven" Universe from the first season of the television series Steven Universe, and was posted on Facebook on May 12, 2015. It also features the lyrics to "Return to the Place Where You Started". The album is composed of nine songs that were previously released on music releases, similar to the soundtrack albums to Steven Universe and Steven Universe: Fusion Fusion. The album was released on September 16, 2015, and received largely positive reviews, with critics praising Suzuki's decision to try experimenting with his style. The album charted in Japan. Album cover The overall color scheme and design is very similar to the cover design from Steven Universe, Suzuki's previous album. Steven is shown wearing his long-haired avatar from the first season of the television series, while standing next to gem crystals on a grayish stone floor. The background is the same pattern from the cover of Fusion Fusion. The lyrics on the cover states

"Steven Universe, Save the Light", in reference to the series' theme song. In the center of the cover there is a rainbow, with rainbow-colored patterns that go towards a triangle in the center; these are the same patterns as the one from "Star Steven" from the final season of the television series, but in a lighter grayscale. There is a circle around Steven's head and a glowing red gem close to it, holding a light reflecting off of Steven's face. The new cover was revealed on Facebook on May 12, 2015. Rockin Moos informed the fans who asked him, "Steven Universe" is part of the title. Rockin' Homer even mentions "The song is called 'Return to the Place Where You Started'". It is not the only album with a song named "Return to the Place Where You Started", as there is also a shorter version of the song on The Definitive Collection, Steven Universe: The Complete Series. Musical styles Suzuki, like every musician in the anime and music industry, usually creates music in genres that are similar to popular music genres. Some genres he usually tries are electro house, progressive rock, gothic rock, jazz rock, funk rock, techtonic house, suibaku, and indie rock.
