What's new in Hook Only:

: Successfully invited players to Bot Weekend, and they now hold our account Hey all, and welcome back! We had some interesting feedback to the bot-related invite announcement post, so I figured I'd be more explicit in what the invitation is for. First, the usual disclaimer: if you get benched, that's your problem. For those of you who didn't catch it the first time, there was no mention of a PvP situation on the note detailing the invite. The important thing, however, was that we're hosting a tournament for teams of players on the "One Day Mode" map, normalized to a score of 5 points. A few clarifying points: Teams are each comprised of two players. There are three teams, led by the two best-performing botmasters of last Bot Weekend, me and autocannon. Obviously, we're sending a handful of prizes our way. I will explain those in detail in future posts, but for now, suffice it to say that we are striving to bring participation and publicity to the community side of our servers. As always, feel free to drop us a line in game if you have any queries. I'm hoping we run from a partial tourney for the rest of the month, but obviously, it's possible we will have to push it to November if we do keep running it. That

Okay, we're not just tooting our own horns, but we figure this ought to be some fun. As always, you can find a more detailed description of One Day Mode on the dedicated blog. 2) One Day Mode: You'll be taking on both bots and humans the same way. Start-ups from two o'clock, current practice conditions from 5, and lunchtime maps. For our part, we'll be setting up for teams of two to have a stable beginning. Once the healing is done, though, especially in the earlier stages, PvP is not out of the question -- whichever team can set the pace and make their opponents frantically run for cover. Or to the menu. 3) Prizes: As I mentioned, we are going to be giving out prizes for each top-three slot, so that should give us a good orientation for the competition. Aside from the cash, we are thinking of virtual goods: any class set that a
