What's new:

: An Interview with Morris Kline I was browsing through the website of Morris Kline when I noticed a few articles on the company's history. Or at least I thought it was a history. What fascinated me in particular was Morris Kline's foresight in diversifying its business in the early years of its existence in order to remain profitable in the midst of a countrywide recession. I wanted to know more, so I contacted Morris Kline's senior vice president Dave Ramon and signed up for a call for an interview. It should be noted that this particular interview is a general interview to be a part of the 'Trash Story' series on Hubtv. Dave Ramon: Good afternoon everyone. This is Dave Ramon with Morris Kline. If you have any questions, please type them in the comments. That way, I'll remember them and you won't remember them, so it will make our interview a little bit more interesting. You can also call us on the phone at 704-309-1855. It's not really so technical or anything like that. The first thing I'd like to do is welcome you to the website. As far as I know, its construction is either new or recent. So can you tell me – is the website new, or have you revamped it? Or have you recruited WordPress experts to improve it? Ramon: We think WordPress is pretty good. It does most of the changes that we have required as far as content, so we're pretty happy with it and we've had – a lot of people that we've got on staff now at Morris Kline, we've hired them from Morris Education. We don't have any WordPress people on staff right now, and we're busy doubling our staff in order to use WordPress to create our institutional custom sites in the future. So right now, what we are trying to do is integrate all our content pieces together like we do here at Hubtv. The homepage here at Hubtv, the homepage at social media, the homepage at training. The homepage over here at the business, that's the Morrus Kline page. All our pages are integrated together and they're all in one place. We've been doing this for about a year and we've had such great success at attracting lots of

From Go documentation: How to specify time zone: In Golang, time.Now() returns time.Time, which does not have a zone. However, time.Parse() accepts a String argument. The time package provides functions to convert a time.Time into a string using a specific timezone (hence the name for this package). So, I thought I'd be able to do something like: var result string = time.Parse("15:17:17", "20/06/17 15:17:17") How do I do that in Go? A: It's time.Parse not time.ParseWithTimeZone You can read more about all the possible flags here. time.Parse() Try something like this. package main import "fmt" import "time" func main() { t1 := time.Now() fmt.Println(t1) t2 := time.Parse("15:17:17", "20/06/17 15:17:17") fmt.Println(t2) } Output: 2014-11-12 11:17:23 +0000 UTC m=+0.000000001 2014-11-12 15:17:17 +0000 UTC m=+0.00000002 Risk factors for the occurrence of neurological injury and progression of disability in ischemic stroke.
