Q: Characteristic of a Group and Generation Theorem Let  $G$  be a group,  $a \in G$  and  $b \in G$ . If characteristic of a group  $G$  is not 0,  $ab=1 \Rightarrow ba=1$  Then if  $a^2=1$ ,  $b^2=1$  OR if  $ab=ba$ ,  $a^2=b^2=1$  Is there any common thing in  $a^2=1$  and  $ab=ba$ ? A: Note that if you have an abelian group, then  $a^2=1$  (and  $a$  has order 2) iff  $a$  has order 2, and the same for  $b^2=1$ . In general, if  $G$  is abelian, then  $ab=ba$ . So,  $(ab)^2 = a^2b^2 = (ba)^2 = 1$ . In fact  $ab=ba=1$ , so  $G$  is trivial. If  $G$  isn't abelian, then we don't necessarily have  $ab=ba$ . For example, if  $H = \langle a \rangle$  and  $K = \langle b \rangle$  are

Q: How to install module inside docker container? I have a module (extension) in my local machine. I want to install this module into apache docker container. Steps: Change permissions/ownership of all files inside container directory Check for correct version of module If everything ok, then install module Unfortunately, docker file doesn't include sudo/chown/chgrp/chmod commands. How to do these steps inside docker file? A: It's an interesting question and I have been doing the same thing, where I have installed gitolite and change the permissions and owners of git repositories. My problem is that I have a git plugin for gitolite, which was defined with git functionality and everything works with git remotes. Now I have installed docker inside my containers and have to install git inside the container for example. It seems that extending the dockerfile for this is a "best practice" and there should be a good docker-git solution out there. But I have found another solution. You can simply docker run -u root -d your-image. This will install all you need inside the container and you will have full root access inside the container, so I think you can handle your problem with the mentioned above. A: You
