Tip You can easily access FotoPad from a web browser by visiting ` # Printing in the Digital Dark Age If you're like me, printing is a major pain, and neither Photoshop nor Fireworks can really make it all happen for you. Printing is complicated because of the number of output formats, the number of programs available, the number of print providers, the size of your files, and the quality of your document. I'll explain the different print methods available in order of complexity, starting with the simplest and going through the more complex. ## Paper

The simplest way to print a document is to print it out onto a piece of paper. This is the most common method for photos and many business documents.

Using a standalone printer, printing comes as a postage stamp-size (4 by 6 inches or about 10 by 15 centimeters) bitmap file that gets printed out as a r

Fancy yourself a MasterChef chef? The wait is over.

MasterChef Junior has partnered with Food Network to launch the show's first online cooking school. The five-part online course, called "Cooking with MasterChef" will feature recipes, tips, demonstrations and hands-on activities. The culinary-themed school launches Aug.

13. The first course is geared toward ages 8-12, and covers "Sweet & Savory," with recipes and demonstrations for peanut butter cup cookies, chocolate bars, brownies and more, according to a press release. The second course teaches "Tasty Flavors," with recipes and demonstrations for apple pie, cookies and cupcakes. Register for the course here.

MasterChef Junior, which is shot in Vancouver, premiered in 2017. The contestants participate in challenges like cooking a steak, making a salad and learning about cooking history, among other topics, before judging by the head chef and host to select the winner. The competition is airing on Sundays at 8 p.m. on Food Network.import * as React from'react';

What's New in the?

Q: If statement doesn't display the color the right way I'm attempting to make a button in the below code to switch the if statement that gives a message of "ready" or not. When I run the code, the text does not display and is not colored green like it's supposed to. What do I do? What I have so far:

game = True
button3 = Button(frame, text = "Get Ready!", width = 10, command = lambda: game)
button3.grid(row = 1, column = 1)
if game:
    Label(frame, text = "Ready", bg="green").grid(row = 1, column = 3)
else:
    Label(frame, text = "Not Ready", bg="green").grid(row = 1, column = 3)
A:

The issue is that you

---

have imported `import Tkinter as tk`. This means that `game = True` needs to be an assignment to the class `game`. In Python3, that means that all statements in the lambda should be expressions, so that `game` will be bound to the class name during the lambda's run. In Python2, you can write the following: `button3 = Button(frame, text = "Get Ready!", width = 10, command = game)`

---

Which allows you to leave the game assignment as a statement. being no convenient way in which to use this in a functional language.

public static void
main(String[] args) {
List lines = new ArrayList();
lines.add("line 1");
lines.add("line 2"); List
result = run(lines); Syst em.out.println(result);
} private static List
run(List lines) { Map
map = new HashMap();
```

---

```
map.put("foo", 1);
map.put("bar", 2);
Set< Entry> entries = map.entrySet(); for (Entry entry : entries) {
if (entry.getValue() >
1) lines.add(entry.getKey() + " " +
entry.getValue()); }
