SHOW MOREQuinn talks about expanding recreational marijuana sales in Springfield Springfield police estimate there were only about 200 to 250 people in attendance at last weekend's marijuana rally held outside Park Square Court. A group that calls itself the Save Springfield Hemp and Cannabis Community says they represent people who are waiting on an OK from the legislative General Assembly to legally grow, process and sell marijuana for recreational use. They allege that Springfield police have been harassing and arresting them. Since The Channelside reported Friday morning that the state is at least 80 percent of the way to final approval to legalize marijuana, Springfield police have issued at least a dozen general orders regarding the rally that was set up with the city's blessing in hopes of turning up the volume of people who attended. The department is sending police to the rally to shut it down at the very least. In an effort to avoid civil unrest or a threat to public
