But yeah, as you know these days, I don't know how to take a news story seriously - I hardly know how to take a news story at all these days, it's all too easily embellished, lies, and propaganda. I don't even follow the news for that matter - I just sort of turn on the TV for like 2-3 hours a day and that's it. So I did what anyone would do, and I made my own personal comedy commentary on this story to help put things into perspective. Build your own chain reaction machine and watch them perform as they dance across your screen. It's a unique sandbox with crazy building blocks that lead to mind-boggling chain reactions. React to all the events you create as they progress, including cat fights, explosions and block avalanches. Plane, block and deploy real-time physics (you'll have to dust off your 3D design skills) as you carve up your planks. Create chains of events to set up re-starts and score bonuses for the fastest reaction times. Experiment with your creations on a variety of things like simple circuits or multi-stage pyromancies. Enjoy the built-in sandbox mode. Crazy Engineer is the perfect sandbox for creating your own chain reactions. No need to spend ages building up a monster machine, simply choose what you want to do and get busy! Instructions: Tap to change the size of the bricks. Tap again to rotate them. Tap again to make them tumble. Who wants to build a 4*4 'thing' and hit a higher score? If you do then it's time to join the gamers party. Have you ever dreamt about being a pro and winning a marvellous prize just by creating good stuff? Sure you can! The hard thing is, to create a 4*4 'thing' which is just sufficient to break the record! In this game you will be able to raise it up. Just grab it and start jumping. You have to jump as many times as you can in one sequence and keep on jumping in the same sequence until you get the 4*4 'thing'. In this game you have to build a wooden House with certain features. If you are not clever enough, dont worry because your house is connected to a power cable which you can pull. With the light coloured sticks on the ground you can throw it to the other side of the sky. After that, you should throw another light coloured stick on to make it lighter. You need to repeat this process many times to make sure that your house reaches the highest position. You can collect some stars which help you to make it faster or to pull it up more easily. You have to choose a place for your house, which is always in a sunny position. You will need it for the higher score. You have to bring the light into your house

What's new:

Wednesday, May 31, 2009 What's up Girls, it's your favorite Princess Trinity Black again and today I'm going to review and give my opinion on the wonderful Getaway Book by Pippa Bennett-Warner. I mean this sounds like every girl's dream right? To be an able bodied woman with a packin' route book and all that stuff at your feet. Oh yeah, and to be stranded on an island where the bonus you have to be wearing a safari skirt and your hair has to be in an afro (Or I do actually want to live out this one, but there is no chance). While the story is really heartwarming, the cover and blurb had a preview in my head where I'd be doing just that. Of course I didn't know that Trinity had written another book, well it is in the same genre as the previously reviewed The Best Alone. I read the blurb and left it at that, I probably shouldn't be reading her books, because she speaks my mind, she's actually very articulate on a lot of things and I like that. She has a knack for helping women view their current status in life and help them find ways of changing it. Believe me, she's done some, just ask Mariska. Curtis got into an accident and he's been hospitalized for over a month. Now his mother and sister are trying to decide where to go, when the feds are hunting the women responsible for his heart condition and his sister is refusing to go to Idaho. When Curtis starts having visions of the past, he discovers his friend, with whom he had some fateful problems in the past, has returned to take Curtis' blood and spirit. Will Curtis regain his own will? And if he does, what's he willing to do to take back what's his? Anna's life is going just as she planned. Recently married to George, a pilot, and soon to be a mother, she wishes she had more time to enjoy all that life has to offer. But when her husband is injured on a trip to London, Anna must locate and meet with his parents just as she is about to reach George's family; leaving her with an emergency the size of the Great Barrier Reef. With the jolt she takes from a set of lodgers it seems just one thing too many. "Enter Cassandra" by Julie Ann Walker Kass

Yes the world has ended, yes most people are dead, and yes you are trying to run a hotel under terrible conditions: but that's no reason not to think about expanding your business to attract more guests. Hope you enjoy this zombie survival game! Happy Survival! What do you like most about the Red Dead Redemption series? My second favorite game in the whole series is probably Redemption, followed by 2011's Red Dead Revolver, so now that I've finished the new DLC campaign I'm wondering if I'll end up with the same feelings as I did for the first two games. I'm definitely looking forward to playing Bloodlust with more aim-customization and on the hardest difficulty level, but I'm also eager to make up for the few hours of gameplay I had to wait to hear the way the story was going to be told in the first place. Finally, this is the first time that my friends and I have played Red Dead Redemption 2 together, so we'll be up all night checking out the online community and some of the more funny situations that you can find in the game, like how some players online who aren't aware of the game's release date will sometimes try to order up a cowboy hat from a seller at the general store. Can't wait to see how this one turns out. Game on! Should you like or care about this
