The 2011 Census recorded a population of 12,373 people in the town. The town has its own local radio station, the Namibian Broadcasting Corporation. History The name Prifoe is a local spelling of the Afrikaans-derived surname Pretorius. The town became a centre for the regional cattle trade, but after settlers were withdrawn following WWII, the population steadily declined. The founding of the Lutheran missions for the Herero and Nama people in the area began in 1875 with the foundation of the Evangelical Lutheran mission in the Keetmanshoop area. This mission was started by the missionary Samuel Schmalkalda (1806-1870). Under the direction of Reverend Jan Woutersz. Belg, Prifoe was founded in 1887, the year the first chapel was built and named after the first Reformed Church pastor in the region, Reverend Johan (Jan) Pretorius. Prifoe then was a settlement of a few hundred people of the Herero tribe. In the beginning of the 1920s the settlement was an important centre for Herero cattle trading. Twenty-five years later the main business in the town was textile production. The town has been devastated by drought since 1989. Geography Climate Sports The best players of the town have been the Namibian rugby

Evaluation of chlorine disinfection of drinking water in the presence of organic carbon. Disinfection by-product (DBP) formation was investigated in the presence of organic carbon during chlorination of hard and well water to investigate mitigation options. Municipal treatment works and wells in New Jersey containing a range of dissolved organic carbon (DOC) concentrations were chlorinated using a hollow-fiber ultrafiltration system, and DBPs were quantified by solid phase extraction and reversed-phase high-performance liquid chromatography-fluorescence detection. Chlorination of hard water produced more trihalomethanes than well water due to concentrations of DOC and carbonaceous bicarbonate controlling the formation of free chlorine, which caused the formation of chloroform and monochloroacetic acid. Chlorination of well water produced higher levels of chlorite because carbonaceous bicarbonate was not present to deactivate hypochlorous acid generated in situ. Reducing the DOC in well water improved DBP formation, presumably because less hypochlorous acid was formed. Chlorination of well water in the presence of carbonaceous bicarbonate at DOC concentrations >0.3 mg/L produced very low chlorite formation, with chlorite more than 60 times higher than monochloroacetic acid and with concentrations >33 mg/L well water containing biogenic chlorination by-products, aldehydes. Chlorination using hollow-fiber ultrafiltration did not reduce DBP formation. Carbonaceous bicarbonate that readily forms from natural organic matter in well water under anaerobic conditions may represent a local source of non-chlor c9d1549cdd

The U.S. military has sent $200,000 to the county to administer a fluoride treatment program over two years. "I'm excited about the potential of the county's new teeth-whitening program and the additional jobs it will create," said Marvin Barnett, Butler County Executive. "The new program and the additional training it will require for our staff and volunteers is a win-win situation. It will make a positive difference in the lives of many children." The project is a collaboration of the department and the county's Community Relations Department. "Butler County's Community Relations Department has worked hand-in-hand with the U.S. Army in a very successful way during the past two years to eradicate a fluorosis problem from our community," said Marvin Barnett, Butler County Executive. "This partnership is a model of collaboration, that will positively affect the lives of many children, and it should be of interest to every community." According to the American Dental Association, children are most vulnerable to the effects of dental fluorosis, a condition affecting teeth enamel that results from exposure to fluorides in water or milk. Fluoride treatment can prevent or reverse dental fluorosis. Local dentists, including Dr. Carolyn Campbell of the Butler County Dental Clinic and Dr. Claudia Neves of the Goodyear Dental Center, have begun participating in the program. "We are very happy to be participating in this program because it is necessary to stop fluorosis. The goal of this program is to educate the parents of children receiving treatment about how to prevent and treat the condition an increase in [or a comparable increase in] income can have increased or decreased political impact depending on wealth distributions and financialized or inflationary politics." The "decline in benefits" [to the 99 percent] of people out of work between 1988 and 2015 was worth $19.5 trillion dollars; and clearly a huge portion of that decline was due to the 95 percent's drop in tax rates. When you combine the stagnating labor cost with the decline in marginal tax rates, it is no wonder why the US has become the world's largest exporter since the Clinton administration. Of course, income distribution is not just about the economy. Thus, we must address the Inequality in Social Welfare. II. EDUCATION AND SOCIAL SERVICES I
