The whole country is suffering with the rise of the players who are calling themselves South London Conspiracy. The new South London Network is a revolutionary organization, constantly getting their hands on different weapons and technologies. With the revolution came the use of mind controlling chips that force people to do the organization's will. The player will have to protect their "patients" while they perform different missions. 10 scenarios MP-54 - "Buddy" - Complimentary 3D model, includes, body, tail, back and head pieces for your characters. Elite Technology - Experimental Tech The players cannot use any weapon upgrades and there are no special class features. Tags Related Games Reviews Critic Reviews GameSpy - 6.5/10 - "South London Conspiracy is a chilling and enjoyable experience. It had its problems in some areas (such as moving the camera and repetitive music sounds), but it is still a good game. Although it may be short, it is an actual game, and not just a demo or "free" trial." GameSpot - 5/10 - "STK can be an enjoyable experience for a weekend afternoon, but it is short and lacks the variety of unique weapons and enemies to warrant a longer play session." IGN - 4.4/10 - "The sluggish camera movement and repetitive nature of the sounds make this title an unpleasant experience. It's also a first-person game, so aside from the sounds, it's very similar to Doom. If there's one thing Doom taught us, it's that there are lots of good first-person shooters available, so there's little reason to play this game. It's, perhaps, the best of a bad bunch." PC World - 5/10 - "Game's diverse, consistent pace makes it fun, but the lack of challenge and dull controls make it too easy." Game Informer - 5.5/10 - "STK is not a game that demands much of its player, but it is a serviceable experience that can be enjoyed on a few occasions as a stealth game." 95% - "If you like stealth-platformers then definitely download this one. Simple controls, nice graphics, and some clever stealth elements make this a fun little game to

This scenario is a standalone package, with its own structure and map. This scenario is a standalone package, with its own structure and map. Welcome to the South London Network Scenario Pack 01! This scenario is a standalone package, with its own structure and map. It has its own dedicated page within this wiki, with example missions, details of how to play out the scenario, and a timer to test your progress against others across the world. The scenario is 6x6, with 5 maps in the pack (the sixth being the 'all out' finale). All but one of these maps centre around an area called the 'pier'. There are a number of blue 4x4 posts scattered around the five maps. They have a range of three blue, three orange and one red. Each team starts with half their starting pool of 5 people (generally, an A team will have around 6 players, and a B will around 10) with another 4 people fighting in a match. The teams are either red, blue, or purple, with certain team colours having special abilities. These colours are red, blue, or violet - respectively. Green, yellow or white are banned colours, while black is sometimes used when there is a shortage of colours. In addition, a number of 'special' people have four stars, these are often called 'A Team', 'B Team', 'A pickups', or 'B pickups' depending on where they start. Additionally, players with yellow or black names are inhibited from picking up drums, and are also unable to carry rucks. Yellow has also been used to designate people who are at the end of their game, so 'yellow picks' are used for them. Pickups and squads may be referred to as all post, or any post, and the top two players in a team pick any post. You can always ask me for a further explanation if you are unsure of something! The time is 10am to 9pm UK time, with play beginning at 10am. There is a team countdown timer at the top right, and a total countdown in the centre of the screen. These will increment by 15 minutes, and be the same colour on each of the five maps. Time is used as a classifier - in short, we have four hours in the day, and much of that is spent sleeping. When a team puts in a pickup, the timer will increase by 15 minutes, if it is before their game begins (and they will get a notification if a
