The motion capture data is delivered to the game engine at over 150,000 frames per second, providing gamers with a fluid and detailed visual experience of the pitch. "When fans play on FIFA PES, players move as they really do in real-life," said Giorgio Papadakis, Executive Producer of FIFA Ultimate Team at EA SPORTS. "When you play FIFA Ultimate Team, the experience you have with the ball is incredibly realistic as you'd see it in a real-life match. With FIFA 22 we are taking the quality of our football gameplay to a new level with an incredible amount of detail at the greatest speed in the market." The motion capture data from FIFA 22 can also be collected by combining motion capture and AI in FIFA Ultimate Team. Combining FIFA player motion capture data with AI-generated animations based on player-specific traits and individual player animations, made possible through the revolutionary 3D avatar technology in FIFA, creates an unparalleled football experience. Using the data, players can look and act as they do in real life. "With the momentum we have gained with FIFA 18, FIFA 19 and the upcoming FIFA Ultimate Team updates, FIFA Ultimate Team is now better than ever," added Papadakis. "Our goal is to continue to deliver the best football gaming experience by constantly innovating and improving on the core gameplay. By focusing on improving the realism of our match engine and VR technologies, we are able to take our gameplay to the next level." HyperMotion Technology will be available in the FIFA 22 Beta this November, with full release of the FIFA 22 game this summer. FIFA 19 New Features and Improvements The most anticipated addition in FIFA 19 is the all-new Attacking Intelligence System (A.I.). Starting with the new system, players now have the ability to identify the defenders, be it zone or man-to-man, and shoot more efficiently through player movements. Teams also have the ability to customize their defensive strategy, with players like John Stones, Dani Alves, Wes Brown, John Terry and Daryl Janmaat at center backs, while the likes of John O'Shea, Mamadou Sakho, John Stones and Nathaniel Clyne could be found at full backs. The new system allows teams to now be more successful at finding defensive weaknesses and send in attackers to a position of advantage. Another major addition in FIFA 19 is the All-Star
