Q: Why is my code removing words from a sentence and printing them backwards? Python

```
3.3.2 def analyse(sentence): wordList = sentence.split() print(wordList) toAlign = [i for i in wordList if i!="."] print(wordList) aligned = " ".join([i.upper() for i in toAlign]) print(aligned)

The program runs and the output is: ['i', 'am', 'waiting', 'a', 'few', 'minutes', 'before', 'i', 'can', 'really', 'begin', 'to', 'be', 'forgiven', 'for', 'what', 'has', 'happened', 'on', 'your', 'computer', 'screen', ' ', ' ', ' '] ['I', 'AM', 'WAITING', 'A', 'FEW', 'MINUTES', 'BEFORE', 'I', 'CAN', 'REALY', 'BEGIN', 'TO', 'BE', 'FORGIVEN', 'FOR', 'WHAT', 'HAS', 'HAPPENED', 'ON', 'YOUR', 'COMPUTER', 'SCREEN', ' ', ' ', ' ']

. . . why is this happening? A: You are not swapping the list elements, as you are swapping the strings. You can do it this way, without the need to create a new list (just swapping the variables):

```
def analyse(sentence): wordList = sentence.split()
```
