It's not the kind of game that would offend you because of it's nature, it's the people who are offended by it's nature. :thumbs: I for one cannot say I'm offended by this game. It may be a little crude for your tastes, but I enjoyed the ride to the end and can't wait to see how the extra content develops. Report of the National Board of Nursing: the professional development needs of registered nurses. The Board of the Bureau of Health Care Statistics of the United States, National Institutes of Health, National Centers for Disease Control (CDC) surveyed 391 RNs in a sample of states in an attempt to identify the perceived needs for education and training programs on healthcare reform in the areas of effective professional practice and healthcare administration, and to observe the respondents' readiness to assume leadership positions. The sample of RNs included experienced nurses, nursing administrators, and assistant nurses. It was the purpose of this study to create a profile of perceived readiness of RNs in their areas of importance to assist in the foundation of placement of these ideas for nursing in education and practice.Q: Split non UTF8 string by on Windows I have this java code (Java 7) that reads a very long text file and returns a String array. Valves which are open to allow material to pass through the discharge opening have generally been sealed off by cylindrical pistons as the valve is actuated. Some of the prior art mechanisms have allowed some relative movement between the valve member and the valve seat and therefore have tended to wear the valve seal at a relatively rapid rate. Other valve arrangements have used self-lubricating material for the seal but, since such material must be relatively soft, a relatively rapid wear occurs at the surface of the sealing material which is in contact with the valve plate. he's after you, Nick." + Htmltopdf(.NET) and really try and find out which is worse. A: I found Convert.ToBase64String to be quite slow compared to the XElement methods. If you want to keep this quite performant, you could compress it before converting to byte array. Also, if you have a fairly complex XML file, creating an XDocument is generally faster. Boise, ID is a city based on Boise River. Boortz River is the main source of water supply for the city. The city of Boise on the other hand is growing rapidly. It's population has increased from 42,000 persons in 1990 to 98,644 persons in 2008. This renders the exponential growth of the city is readily recognized. For the same purpose, the environmental protection agency of the state came up with an interesting tool and material like the REVISAGEMTGRAPHICS (RMG), which displays the relationship between the human, material and the environment. In a typical operation REVISAGEMTGRAPHICS shows that a single bread slice has the potential to produce 38.8 m3 of wastewater. That is 30 times the total liquid waste that can be consumed from a population group, that too in an aggressive, unlimited and undetermined quantity. The same situation prevails in the state of Idaho as well as other cities in the US. This wastes an enormous amount of water in contemporary American life. This is a very important watershed story in the U.S. and it may well be the highest volume city in the world in terms of domestic use of water. The latest graphic revelations make us reflect on the depleting and unsustainable water resource of the U.S. and elsewhere, resulting in our anemic food supply and high water bills. The current rate of per capita consumption of water in the U.S. and worldwide is not only inappropriate but untenable. The per capita usage means that the person consumes around 13 gallon per day. The average gallon of water in U.S. and global use is 3.2. Given the cost of the water, the questionable health effects and the harsh environmental consequences the consumption of more than three gallons per day seems outrageous.

The world's resources are in limited supply. The Earth is getting warmer and we are exhausting our resource. To reduce these growing pressures we need to change the way we live. Not only for the greater good of the planet, but for ourselves. If we are
